The preliminaries for the discussion of the land question were settled in the morning at the end of a contest between the friends of Senate Bill 75 known as the Garvin, Winsor or administration bill and Senate Bill 127, called the farmers' bill which leaves with the land commission as little power as possible.

The friends of the Garvin bill said that they believed that the farmers' bill was the better but they had reasons for wanting to send No. 75 to the house, however much changed, did not matter. President Sims said, the name than the matter.

Mr. Webb, whether seriously or jocularly, suggested that No. 127 be given the number of 75, for the delusion of the house.

An Intervening Matter

When the senate convened in the afternoon, Mr. Goldwater rose to a question of personal privilege. He sending him marked copies of news-One of these papers had a flaring headline: "Arizona is Short of Hogs" Said Mr. Goldwater, if that was not sufficient proof of the unreliability of the Arizona press, here was a copy of another paper containing a statement by President Pratt of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Phoenix hinting at the existence of a lobby in the legislature and accusing the members themselves of log rolling, in violation of the law and in the face of heavy penalties. Up to this point, Mr. Goldwater was speaking jocularly but now he became serious. "Whenever I go down street," he said, "I am stopped by people who ask me about an extra They have understood that a combination has tied things up in senate I have heard a confirmation of the story that log rolling is going the lateral system.

"I am really too new to tell you anyon and that there is a combination on the other side of the house. I do not want an extra session: I want to get through with the business here and self. Mr. Martin believed that would locate his headquarters in the selection such an arrangement would result in inequalities and that the state would not receive proper protection. He moved therefore that the board of appraisers should consist of the chairman of the board of supervisors, for that county, the chairman of the land commission and the chairman of the tax commission. Mr. Karns suggested land commission, any member of the land commission should act.

The bill provided that the commission should consist of three members appointed by the governor. Mr. Webb moved to amend by making the com- into the affairs of the Chicago, Rock

PIUTE INDIAN BAND

Dutchy, the Ute Indian, who is said to know the hiding place in the mountains of Old Polk and Posey, Indian leaders of the band sought by U. S. Marshal Nebeker and his posse, has agreed to disclose their whereabouts, according to a dispatch from Bluff. Utah.

According to report, Chier Polk was instrumental in the death of Dutchy's brother, who was killed on Thursday. Nebeker's posse has been in pursuit of Tse Ne Gat, and other Piute Indians for more than a week for the murder of a Mexican sheep herder. Dutchy had tak-en no part in the affair until his brother was killed by some of the followers of Polk, who is the father of Tse Ne Gat (Everett Hatch) but is now eager to avenge his brother's death.
